SURPRISES AT THE INSTITUTE

Lecturer Asks Unusual Question and Receives Ready Response. Another Instructor Suggests a Little Less Grammar in Some Public Schools.

Teachers and others attending the sessions of the fifty ninth annual institute at Walter's Theatre are given more or less frequent surprises by the instructors having in charge the course of the week. Several of these marked the opening session on Monday afternoon.

With his subject "Underlying Principles in Teaching", Dr. Charles H. Albert, of the Bloomsburg State Normal School, suddenly asked of his audience this remarkable question, "How many of you are Country Jakes?" and immediately hands went up all over the house. "You look it" was the smiling observation of the speaker and vigorous applause followed from those who had held up their hands, whereupon Dr. Albert declared that he also belonged in the class and was glad that he did.

Those interested in education were given another surprise during the afternoon when Dr. Chauncey P. Colegrove, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, stated that he would like to see a less elaborate course in grammar and geography than that given in some public schools. This, in view of the fact that a claim is made that fifty per cent of the college students to-day cannot speak the English language correctly, was a rather new idea. And, if the college boys can't talk good English, how about those who never get that far—the 96 per cent of those who enter the public schools and never graduate from a higher institution? Where are they to get their knowledge of grammar and good English?

Dr. Colegrove was making a plea for the "bread and butter" variety of schooling, the kind that will fit a man to be a bread winner first of all with the "extras" in his education a more or less secondary consideration, the speaker calling attention to the necessity for the great class of citizens that go to make up the middle class of the country and who need to leave the public schools with a practical knowledge of which they may make immediate use.

Every minute outside of the actual instruction hours of the institute is taken up by the teachers in quest of diversion. Several of the associations of normal school graduates and former pupils will have reunions during the week, and other social events will be held between sessions.

On Monday afternoon a basketball team composed of teachers met the quintet from the local High School at the Garden Auditorium and went down to defeat by the score of 12 to 4.

Monday evening the lecture by Dr. Andrew P. Johnson on "Eli and Dennis", the successful man and the unsuccessful, entertained a large audience.

The Adams County teachers formerly from the Millersville Normal School organized as a branch of the Alumni Association of that institution Monday evening at four o'clock. Professor P. M. Harbold, president of the normal school, was present and the organization numbers between thirty-five and forty members, which includes some of our town students from college and seminary, also two high school principals of Adams County. Meetings will be held annually during institute week. The officers elected are as follows: President, Prof. J. W. Bucher, of East Berlin; Vice President, Francis Smith, of Littlestown; Secretary and Treasurer, Miss Mary Robinson, of Littlestown.

A GOOD YEAR

Many Crops Harvested at Orphanage Near Two Taverns.

At the meeting of the board of directors of the Hoffman Orphanage all the officers were re-elected, president, Dr. T. J. Barkley, Gettysburg; vice president, Dr. F. S. Lindaman, Littlestown; secretary, J. L. Gerber, York; treasurer, Dr. C. S. Slagle, Westminster.

The report made to the Potomac synod held at Frederick, November 1, shows that the year has been one of growth at the orphanage. An electric light plant has been installed at a cost of $1,000, of which Theodore R. Helb, of York, the donor of the administration building, contributed $800. On anniversary day $150 was contributed by special donations, leaving a balance of $50 to be provided. The underwriters have examined and certify the system. A beginning has been made on grades, cement walks and driveways.

On account of unfavorable weather conditions the crops were not as large as expected, but were above the results of the farms surrounding. They consisted of 2,400 bushels of ear corn, 400 wheat, 120 oats, 150 rye, 100 barley, 50 tons hay and 3 bushels of timothy seed. Sweet corn, though half a crop, amounted to 9,764 pounds. From one acre 150 bushels of beans were gathered. There were only 60 bushels of potatoes, about half enough for the use of the orphanage.

The boys began their actual agricultural experience by cultivating a plot of ground. The beans were their special care. The sale of the beans from one acre amounted to $80.

The family now consists of 23 children besides two who are in private homes. Many applications had to be turned down because of lack of accommodations.

WANT MR. KETTERMAN

Lutherans of Portage Want Mr. Ketterman to Preach to Them.

The Rev. Paul H. Ketterman, the former Gettysburg College student, whose recent unpleasantness with members of his congregation at Lily, Cambria county, caused him to file a suit for damages, may be called to the Lutheran church at Portage, Cambria county. A movement has been launched at that place among the friends of the minister which may result in the issuing of a call to him.

Although vindictive him of the charges preferred against him by the members of the Lily congregation, the special committee of the Allegheny synod of the Lutheran church, which conducted the investigation, urged that he sever connections with the Lily charge at once and secure a pastorate at some other place.

Residents of Portage have suggested that the Rev. Mr. Ketterman take up the pastorate there and be given charge of the small church in Portage township.

FARMERS READY FOR THE WINTER

Fall Work is Practically All out of the Way. Preparing for the Activities of the Winter Months. Some Corn yet to be Husked.

The farmers of Adams county are preparing themselves for the winter and about all that is left for them to do in the fields is to finish the husking of corn. Many have already completed this task and the corn has been placed in the cribs. Some has been roasted and converted into cornmeal.

Many farmers are at present getting ready for the butchering season, which in some sections has been begun. Farmers, as a rule, butcher several times, once or twice before the Christmas holidays and again in January and February. The itinerant butchers are very much in demand, for it is evidently a fact that fewer persons follow this business.

Although the majority of the crops—especially corn—were a little below the average, one may see quite a number of herds of steers in traveling through Adams county. Most of them were bought at some stock sales and they will be fattened for the markets next spring. When feed is plentiful fattening steers is considered a paying proposition.

Indications now are that the bulk of poultry raised in Adams county this year will be disposed of during the next month because of the attractive prices prevailing. Many ducks and geese are being engaged for Thanksgiving dinner, as turkeys are too high priced for most folks. Farmers who have large flocks of these birds have promised nearly all of them to private customers. Not taking the risk of paying the exorbitant price asked near the holidays, more families than probably ever before have given the order direct to the farmer for their Thanksgiving, Christmas or New Year turkey.

Hardly a day passes on the farm during this time of the year but that some jockey visits the farmer in view of purchasing one or two horses that he may have for sale. It is customary to dispose of those horses which are not needed after the field work is finished. Because of the number of farm stock sales, in some cases a neighboring farmer may place the one or two extra horses or even cows on public vendue, allowing the man who conducts the sale a small commission for selling the stock, thus putting the animal up to the highest bidder.

The automobiles may probably continue to run in the towns and on big highways all winter, but the average farmer who owns a machine is already preparing a place in which to store his machine for the winter, for the roads are already, in some rural sections, showing unfavorable signs for automobilizing.

BAZAAR AND VAUDEVILLE

Will Have Large Bazaar in Xavier Hall Next Week.

The bazaar for the benefit of St. Francis Xavier church will open in Xavier Hall Saturday evening, November 22. Attractive booths have been erected and elaborate preparations made. Beginning with Monday evening, when the ladies' minstrels will hold the boards, there will be free vaudeville every evening at eight o'clock. Thanksgiving dinners will be served Thursday and the afternoon given over to the entertainment of the children.

A contest will open Saturday evening for the most popular lady in the congregation, the prize offered being a gold signet ring, and the contest continuing for a week. The "Catacombs" promise to prove interesting to all visitors at the hall which will much resemble a busy county fair. Admission will be free.

SUCCESSFUL YOUTH

Raymond Harbaugh, Buena Vista, Hunting Alone, Brings Down Deer.

A 16-year old boy brought down a big buck on the mountain near the Buena Vista reservoir Monday about nine o'clock. Raymond Harbaugh, son of William Harbaugh, Buena Vista, was the successful young hunter. He was hunting by himself when he shot the deer. The deer had four prongs and weighed 120 pounds.

The young hunter was vastly delighted with his prize and ran the entire way home to get a youth to accompany him back to the reservoir and help him get the deer home. The two boys carried it the three miles from the reservoir to the Harbaugh home.

One of the largest deer ever killed in the South Mountain was shot by Dr. John Lessig, from Schuylkill Haven, who is a member of the Arendtsville Hunting Club. The animal proves to be one of the old native deer and a perfect specimen, weighing 225 pounds with 14 perfect points, seven on each side. This powerful animal was brought down by a perfect shot in the right shoulder, penetrating the neck and coming out the opposite side.

The Monterey hunt club got its third deer on Monday.

Roy Birely, Blue Ridge Summit, brought down a 4-prong, 135-pound buck about two miles from Caledonia.

Samuel Carbaugh, of the same neighborhood, shot a smaller buck near the same ridge on Friday which weighed 94 pounds.

Postmaster Charles Mahon, of the Fayetteville club, shot a nine-prong buck Saturday morning.

ARE BUYING MORE GOODS OF THE UNITED STATES.

Increase in Exports to Latin America Shown by Government.

While there has been an enormous increase in the amount of goods shipped from the United States to Latin American countries during the past ten years, this does not mean that the United States is supplying a greater proportionate share than before, but rather indicates the increased consuming power of these countries, according to the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. During the calendar year 1913 the exports to these countries will approximate $335,000,000 against $123,000,000 in 1903 and $87,000,000 in 1908. The government bureau states that the trend in the export trade of the United States has been in recent years distinctly toward American countries. Illustrative of this fact are the figures which show that the exports of the United States to Latin America increased 183 per cent in the decade ending with the fiscal year 1913, while the exports to all other parts of the world meantime increased but 64 per cent. "This growth of 183 per cent in our exports to Latin America," says a statement just issued by the bureau, "is apparently, however, a result of the increased consuming power of those countries rather than an increase in the share which the United States supplies of their imports." Figures taken from the official reports of the countries affected show that the share which the United States is supplying of the imports of these countries was in 1911 no larger than a decade ago. They indicate that exports from the United States to Latin America have merely kept step with the general growth of the importations of these countries.

MEXICO TO BREAK WITH U.S. QUICKLY

Mexico City Believes American Embassy Will Close.

HUERTA TO RESIGN THURSDAY?

General Blanquet Said to Be at Odds With Dictator — President Wilson Denies O'Shaughnessy Is to Leave.

Mexico City, Mex., Nov. 18. — An early severance of diplomatic relations between the United States and Mexico is regarded here as inevitable. Whether the embassy is to remain or be withdrawn immediately appears to be a question of which Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American charge d'affaires, himself is uncertain. The staff is ready to leave at a moment's notice and little surprise would be felt, although much alarm would be caused, in case O'Shaughnessy and his associates should take the train to Vera Cruz.

Despite the widespread pessimistic view the report was revived that General Huerta intends to resign the provisional presidency on the convening of congress in regular session Thursday. It was based on the alleged declaration of a member of the new chamber of deputies.

Huerta, on the surface at least, regards his part in the recent exchange of communications with the United States as finished. He expects to find no difficulty in consummating his plan to bring his new congress to full organization, and he continues planning his military campaigns and carrying out his policies of pacification. The new house of deputies organized on Saturday, but the new senate lacked a quorum.

Huerta emphasized his defiance of the United States by removing from his cabinet Manuel Garza Adalpe, minister of the interior, who was a leader in the movement to have Huerta resign and to reopen negotiations with the United States.

There was considerable gossip in political circles of further changes in the Mexican cabinet. General Aurelio Blanquet, the minister of war, is said to have had a misunderstanding with Huerta, which may cause him to leave the cabinet.

"General Huerta will fight it out to the end. Negotiations with the United States, which aims to oust him from office, are at an end. In fact, diplomatic relations have practically been broken off."

This statement was made by an official of the Mexican government. In explaining that part of his statement as to the breaking off of diplomatic relations he said:

"Charge d'affaires O'Shaughnessy can approach no member of the cabinet freely. When John Lind left Mexico City only Minister of the Interior Adalpe showed any cordiality to O'Shaughnessy. It was through Adalpe's efforts that negotiations were renewed, and now that Adalpe has been forced out, O'Shaughnessy is in a peculiar position. He is persona non grata to Huerta because he is the official representative of the United States, and Senor Moseno, minister of foreign affairs, is a creature of Huerta."

All the ministers of foreign countries are still in Mexico City, and it is not anticipated that any of them will leave their posts, even in case of intervention. Admiral Von Hintze, the German, declared that he believed there was no reason for anxiety.

"A plan is being considered," he said, "by which armed intervention will most surely be avoided." What further move may be taken at Washington is a question which neither the Mexicans nor the foreigners find an easy one to answer, but here was noticeable an increasing expression of opinion that the United States would continue her hands-off policy.

WILSON STILL CONFIDENT

Declares Circumstances of Mexican Situation Have Been Unchanged. Washington, Nov. 18. — President Wilson does not regard the Mexican situation as having reached any such critical stage as to require the closing of the American embassy.

Discussing reports to that effect, he said that Charge d'affaires O'Shaughnessy neither had been given his passports nor been told to come back to the United States.

While details as to persons had changed, yet the main circumstances remained substantially the same as when the president previously expressed a favorable view of the situation.

The president indicated that while the personal attitude of General Huerta might have changed, the circumstances upon which the American government bases its conviction that Huerta's elimination is inevitable, have not changed at all.

It was plain at the White House that the peremptory resignation of Minister Adalpe did not affect materially the American plan, as it was pointed out that no plan that this government might have could well depend on the permanency of any member of the Huerta cabinet.

The president made it plain that the changes in the situation, though they appeared kaleidoscopic in detail, had not impaired confidence in the ultimate solution of the problem by peaceful means.

POTTSVILLE OFFERS ARMOR PLATE SITE

Would Give Government Plot Free of Charge.

Washington, Nov. 18.—A naval armor plant free of cost to the government is offered formally by Pottsville, Pa., through Congressman Robert E. Lee, of that town.

The site offered by Mr. Lee is located on the main lines of the Philadelphia & Reading and the Pennsylvania railroads, in the heart of the anthracite coal region.

There will be no charge to the navy department if it decided to take the ground offered by the Pottsville congressman.

Mr. Lee made his offer through this letter to Secretary Daniels: "In view of the fact that the government is considering the erection of its own armor plant, I am authorized by the citizens of Schuylkill county, Pennsylvania, the district that I have the honor to represent, to tender to the government, free of charge, a suitable plot of ground for the erection of said plant. The ground is located on the main lines of the Philadelphia & Reading and the Pennsylvania railroads, in the heart of the anthracite coal region."

$100,000 IN BRIDAL GIFTS

Secret Service Men Watch Over Miss Wilson's Presents.

ONE DOG AMONG THEM

The Arrangements For White House Wedding Next Week Are Rapidly Nearing Completion.

Washington, Nov. 18.—A guard of secret service men has been installed at the White House to keep watch over valuable wedding presents for Miss Jessie Wilson, who is to be married to F. B. Sayre on Nov. 25.

The jewelry and four solid silver dinner sets, together with a hundred odd pieces of silver and gold, valued at more than $100,000, are locked up in a closet under guard day and night. Many of the presents are bulky.

One of the members of the "Southern Cousins Club" sent a massive set of antique mahogany furniture, and there are a number of other pieces of furniture, to say nothing of Oriental rugs and lamps. Two of the new "spare rooms," which were built in the top story last summer, are being used for the storage of these cumbersome gifts.

Packages are arriving every hour. The girls are sent up to the family sitting room on the second floor, and the family goes into "executive session" to take a "peek." Even the president, when he goes across from the offices to the White House proper for luncheon, is dragged up to have a look at the presents which arrived during the morning. Almost all of the "official presents" have been received, but there are still many friends of the family who have not been heard from.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond are said to have in contemplation the gift of a large and perfect single diamond, which may be worn as a pendant or affixed to a hair ornament.

Miss Wilson will have only one dog for a wedding present. She has been offered a great many pets of all kinds, but the only "live gift" will be Ping Pong, a Pekinese, sent to her from the American embassy in London, as the result of a long cherished wish.

Arrangements for the wedding are rapidly nearing completion. The east room will be roped off with white satin ropes from the entrance of the main corridor to the opposite window, including the doors of the blue room and the dais on which the bride party will stand.

An aisle will be marked in this inclosure, down which the wedding party will proceed. The president's family and relatives and the bridegroom's family will be grouped about the base of the dais.

Directly back of them the cabinet members and their wives will stand, with Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and Mrs. White and the associate justices and their wives. Vice President and Mrs. Marshall, Speaker and Mrs. Clark, Miss Genevieve Clark, the dean of the diplomatic corps and Mme. Jusserand, and the ambassadors and ministers of the corps and their families.

The intimate friends of the Wilson family will also be in this inclosure. The rest of the guests will occupy the remaining space in the long room. There will be no seats.

HAND SHOT OFF

Gun Being Cleaned by Hunter Accidentally Discharged.

Guy Warner, of Seven Valleys, aged about twenty-five years, had his right hand blown off by the accidental discharge of a gun, which he was preparing to take hunting. The gun was an old one that had not been used for years, and the young man's father had warned him against using it. Warner sat down on the porch of his home to get the gun in condition for hunting. He tried to break the gun in order to withdraw the shells. This he failed to accomplish. He set the gun down, leaning it against the wall. As he did so it was discharged and his hand, which was over the mouth of the gun, was blown off.

Dr. G. M. Fickes was summoned and after dressing his wounds ordered Warner taken to the York hospital. At that institution the mangled portion of the hand was amputated by the staff surgeons.

On November 22 the Hassett Club of Harrisburg will play the Gettysburg High School here.

FOLLOW THE STRING.

Much sport may be had by the distribution of comical gifts in the following fashion: From a given center cords of all colors and conditions, no two alike, extend in every direction—upstairs, downstairs and almost into molly's chamber, across each other, here and there, often being knotted together at these points of intersection. Each searcher winds up his cord as he proceeds, and many difficulties in the way of knots to be untied and round and round windings to be unwound he encounters. When he finally reaches his future it usually proves to be a coin, a toy, a book of nursery tales or some article of absolute absurdity.

Courtship in Oshima.

On the Japanese island of Oshima in the Sea of Japan the young people enjoy more freedom in the matter of courting than in Central Japan. They are left to themselves to select their own mates, much after the fashion of the west. When a young suitor proposes to the girl of his choice, the girl declines two or three times as a matter of form, and in order that she may enjoy the period of courtship.

THE CHRISTMAS BREAKFAST.
Should Be Merely a Preparation For

The Christmas breakfast as well as a Christmas lunch or supper should some families it is the custom to breakfast eggs.

These scissors are miniature chickft natural color for the sake of the contrast, and the whole affair is not more than five inches long.

A handsome platter for the accommodation of eggs served on toast may e presented.
A nice way of serving the Christmas breakfast eggs is to set two small slices of toasted bread, well buttered, on a ish; above arrange about eighteen st, cooked asparagus tips; above the tips set two poached eggs. Pour over the whole a scant cupful of Madeira ashroom caps (sliced or not) have ven simmered about ten minutes.

Hanging Stories to Him.
No matter how high a man may climb in the councils of the nation, no matter how worthy, or useful, or dignified he may be, there is nothing that will prevent the irreverent from tying wheezy old stories to him.

RALPH PARLETTE TO LECTURE HERE

Humorist-Lecturer Will Give His Idea on Lecturing.

Ralph Parlette, editor of the Lyceum Magazine, humorist and widely known lecturer, has been engaged to lecture here this season. He is a genius—only a genius could write and talk as he does. He was asked his idea of lecturing and we give below
what he wrote us.

Parlette's Idea of Lecturing.
I used to think a lecture was a lot of words. I used to think if I could only get the words put together right,
get the right position on the stage, get control of my diaphragm and let the fingers follow the wrist, that would be a lecture. And I hunted for words and tried to build fine sentences. I studied the books and learned voice culture and gestur-ing. I learned how to make a climax, wet or dry. I learned how to use the tremolo stop and how to split the window panes. And I made a mule of myself.

It has taken fifteen years to begin to learn that a lecture is the overflow of a life. It is the man inside the clothes and the gestures. We need the gestures and the training, but they are the necktie. And I had a necktie and no man to hang it on.
Now I am trying to make my life
luminous and big and warm and right, and something is happening. The world used to run away from me, but now it comes to see me. The world is hungry, and when my audience asked me for bread I gave it a gesture.
And the audience went to sleep. Now
I am trying to give my audience food, no matter if the wrapper isn't very artistic, and they come back and ask for more.

And it is a daily job to lecture. I work all the day on the typewriter,
and run for trains, and grab for machine-made pie of the lunch counters make long drives and stay out of bed
all night, and when I get to my town in the evening it is heavenly rest just to get on the platform and spill out the gold I am digging out each day over the audience that some hard-working committee has been struggling for weeks to get out.

I love every audience. I go to it like it was my long-lost brother. I used to hate audiences—and they hated me. The audience is just my own mirror. I smile at the audience, and it always smiles back. There's that front row of wriggling kids down there. I love them, and pretty soon they quit wriggling and listen to me.
And there's the baby that breaks its heart and fusses up its mother as I commence to lecture. I love that baby, and somehow the wireless begins to work and pretty soon the baby is sticky-eyed and mother has forgotten all.

Then I talk a few moments and rest myself from the long day's work and travel, and, bless me! Just about the time I get started on my lecture, I look at my watch and I have talked too long already. So I don't give my lecture at all. I haven't given a lecture for a year. I just started to give one and the time was up; just like I used to sleep when a boy—went to bed and somebody stole the night, for the next minute it was morning and father was coming upstairs with a pitcher of water to make his last call.

But I go away from the hall all rested. I filed pretty near 300 dates last year. Folks wanted me I was killing myself. I want to go on killing myself that way, for I get fatter and happier each month, resting nearly 300 times. It is great to rest in public and be paid money for it. I feel guilty every time I take money from a committee. I feel as though I ought to pay the committee for the privilege of resting before their audience.

I know my lecture stuff is good for the audience, because it is good for me. I first try it on myself.

And the big thing I have learned in these years of trying to lecture is Keep in touch with the Power-House!
There is only one subject in this world—God and Man. There is no difference between a sermon and a lecture. The Lyceum platform is my pulpit. Boli it all down into Race Improvement.

I haven't done anything yet, but I see the way. Somebody slaps me on the back and says: "I heard you at —." "Stop!" I beg. "Don't throw it up to me! I am trying to forget it."
For I am not pleased with one lecture yet, but the Big Lecture I want to give is ahead. I'll give it when my life gets big.

A Discovery

By MARY L. BLACKISTON

One day a man stood in London beside one of those holes left for the use of persons who descend to the sewers.
The place was in an unfrequented portion of the city, and there was no one near him. He looked about him and listened for a footfall, then, producing a crowbar, inserted one end under the round metal cover of the hole and, lifting it, descended, permitting the cover to fall back into its place. Once in the sewer he drew from under his ragged coat a lantern.

John Murphy made his living by picking up articles that, having got into the sewer, were lost to their owners. Soon he found an umbrella. It was covered with sewer mud, but was of silk with an elaborately carved handle. John knew that when new it was worth a couple of sovereigns; when cleaned he might get half of that for it. This was unusual luck. He went on looking about him for other articles, but after an hour's walk had found nothing. He was about to leave the sewer when he stumbled on the biggest find in his life—no, the biggest find in the world.

He came to a place where a small piece of the masonry had fallen in.
Pointing the bullseye of his lantern upward, he threw the light into the aperture left vacant and disclosed a broken floor composed of marble squares. Pile-ing the fallen debris so as to enable him to get his hands on what was above him, he drew himself up and found himself in a room. Throwing his light about him, he saw a number of boxes, some of which were loosely covered. Examining the contents of one of them, he threw his light on gold coins. Other boxes contained like contents. In the room was a treasure of inestimable value.

It was now night. Murphy wished to emerge by a manhole near the break and took the risk of doing so.
Several persons saw him, but thought nothing of the matter. As soon as he got up on the street he saw straight before him the Bank of England. Then he knew that he had been in the strong room of the largest banking institution in the world.

One morning the governor of the bank received a note addressed to him, ungrammatical, misspelled, bearing every evidence of having been written by an illiterate person. The writer said that the bank was in danger of losing a great deal of money. A letter addressed to John Murphy at a certain postoffice substation, inviting the said Murphy to state his case to the governor, would receive attention.
Many old letters reach the Bank of England, and Murphy's letter was weeded out of the governor's mail before reaching him.

A few days later the bank received by express ten sovereigns wrapped in a piece of paper, on which was written in pencil the number of the box in the strong room from which they had been taken. The money in the box was counted and found to be short by ten sovereigns.

The incident excited a commotion among the officials of the bank. A meeting in the governor's private room was called to consider the loss and how it could have occurred. No one dreamed that there was a hole in the floor of the strong room, and no one could suggest a probable way by which the coins sent to the bank had been removed. While the officials were considering, John Murphy appeared before an official at a desk and said that he wished to see the governor. Having been questioned by the startled official, he said that he was the man who had sent the ten sovereigns to the bank and was there to tell how he got them.

The official had not heard of the sending of the coins, for that had been kept a profound secret. He told John Murphy to move on, and John did so but to another part of the building where he told his story again and again. He was just about to be taken into custody by a bank policeman when a prominent official of the bank who knew the secret of the returned sovereigns happened to inquire his office.
Within five minutes the ragged sover searcher was standing in the governor's room confronting a number of sleek looking directors. He was permitted to speak and told the assembly
how he had got into the strong room from the sewer and how he or any one else who knew the secret might go and come at will.

If the receipt of the sovereigns had caused a commotion this information raised a whirlwind of excitement. A committee was sent to examine the strong room and returned confirming Murphy's information. John was held for two reasons—the money must be counted to make sure that he had not appropriated any of it, and if he should tell the secret the matter would make a much greater sensation among the public than even it did among the officials of the bank.

The count required a long while, and during the time it was in progress the sewer was repaired and the room made strong. When it was all over the discoverer of the break was summoned to the governor's room.

"How many persons have you told of this matter?" asked the latter.
"No one except you in the bank."
"On that table are a thousand sovereigns. Take them and make yourself comfortable. You are also appointed one of the strong room watchers with a salary of £500 a year."

COLORED BROCADE BRIGHTENS DARK FROCKS

While vivid colors are very modish,
a touch is quite sufficient to brighten and trim the street dress or suit. For evening wear, of course, these bright dyes may be indulged in to the heart's content. The rich coloring of the brunette is enhanced by a touch of that new flame color that so well deserves its name. The blond or she of the "in between" complexion may select Turkish green or one of the brilliant blues for the touch of sharp contrast required on the new suit or frock.
A plain blouse and a plaid skirt are used in 7713-7861. The design shows a novel two-piece skirt. The arrangement of the tucks on the front gives the effect of a tunic in front and a slightly draped appearance in back.
The blouse shows a good looking rag-lan sleeve in a drop-shoulder.

ARE BUYING MORE GOODS OF THE UNITED STATES.

Increase in Exports to Latin America Shown by Government.

While there has been an enormous increase in the amount of goods shipped from the United States to Latin American countries during the past ten years, this does not mean that the United States is supplying a greater proportionate share than before, but rather indicates the increased consuming power of these countries, according to the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. During the calendar year 1913 the exports to these countries will approximate $235,000,000 against $123,000,000 in 1912 and $87,000,000 in 1911. The government bureau states that the trend in the export trade of the United States has been in recent years distinctly toward American countries. Illustrative of this fact are the figures which show that the exports of the United States to Latin America increased 183 per cent in the decade ending with the fiscal year 1913, while the exports to all other parts of the world meantime increased but 64 per cent. "This growth of 183 per cent in our exports to Latin America," says a statement just issued by the bureau, "is apparently, however, a result of the increased consuming power of those countries rather than an increase in the share which the United States supplies of their imports." Figures taken from the official reports of the countries affected show that the share which the United States is supplying of the imports of these countries was in 1911 no larger than a decade ago. They indicate that exports from the United States to Latin America have merely kept step with the general growth of the importations of these countries.

MEXICO TO BREAK WITH U.S. QUICKLY

Mexico City Believes American Embassy Will Close.

HUERTA TO RESIGN THURSDAY?

General Blanquet Said to Be at Odds With Dictator — President Wilson Denies O'Shaughnessy Is to Leave.

Mexico City, Mex., Nov. 18. — An early severance of diplomatic relations between the United States and Mexico is regarded here as inevitable. Whether the embassy is to remain or be withdrawn immediately appears to be a question of which Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American charge d'affaires, himself is uncertain.

The staff is ready to leave at a moment's notice and little surprise would be felt, although much alarm would be caused, in case O'Shaughnessy and his associates should take the train to Vera Cruz.

Despite the widespread pessimistic view the report was revived that General Huerta intends to resign the provisional presidency on the convening of congress in regular session Thursday. It was based on the alleged declaration of a member of the new chamber of deputies.

Huerta, on the surface at least, regards his part in the recent exchange of communications with the United States as finished. He expects to find no difficulty in consummating his plan to bring his now progress to full organization, and he continues planning his military campaigns and carrying out his policies of pacification. The new house of deputies organized on Saturday, but the new senate lacked a quorum.

Huerta emphasized his defiance of the United States by removing from his cabinet Manuel Garza Adalpe, minister of the interior, who was a leader in the movement to have Huerta resign and to reopen negotiations with the United States.

There was considerable gossip in political circles of further changes in the Mexican cabinet. General Aurelio Blanquet, the minister of war, said to have had a misunderstanding with Huerta, which may cause him to leave the cabinet.

"General Huerta will fight it out to the end. Negotiations with the United States, which aims to oust him from office, are at an end. In fact, diplomatic relations have practically been broken off."

This statement was made by an official of the Mexican government. In explaining that part of his statement as to the breaking off of diplomatic relations he said:

"Charge d'affaires O'Shaughnessy can approach no member of the cabinet freely. When John Lind left Mexico City only Minister of the Interior Adalpe showed any cordiality to O'Shaughnessy. It was through Adalpe's efforts that negotiations were renewed, and now that Adalpe has been forced out, O'Shaughnessy is in a peculiar position. He is persona non grata to Huerta because he is the official representative of the United States, and Senor Moseno, minister of foreign affairs, is a creature of Huerta."

All the ministers of foreign countries are still in Mexico City, and it is not anticipated that any of them will leave their posts, even in case of intervention. Admiral Von Hintze, the German, declared that he believed there was no reason for anxiety.

"A plan is being considered," he said, "by which armed intervention will most surely be avoided."

What further move may be taken at Washington is a question which neither the Mexicans nor the foreigners find an easy one to answer, but here was noticeable an increasing expression of opinion that the United States would continue her hands-off policy.

WILSON STILL CONFIDENT

Declares Circumstances of Mexican Situation Have Been Unchanged.

Washington, Nov. 18. — President Wilson does not regard the Mexican situation as having reached any such critical stage as to require the closing of the American embassy.

Discussing reports to that effect, he said that Charge d'affaires O'Shaughnessy neither had been given his passports nor been told to come back to the United States.

While details as to persons had changed, yet the main circumstances remained substantially the same as when the president previously expressed a favorable view of the situation.

The president indicated that while the personal attitude of General Huerta might have changed, the circumstances upon which the American government bases its conviction that Huerta's elimination is inevitable, have not changed at all.

It was plain at the White House that the peremptory resignation of Minister Adalpe did not affect materially the American plan, as it was pointed out that no plan that this government might have could well depend on the permanency of any member of the Huerta cabinet.

The president made it plain that the changes in the situation, though they appeared kaleidoscopic in detail, had not impaired confidence in the ultimate solution of the problem by peaceful means.

POTTSVILLE OFFERS ARMOR PLATE SITE

Would Give Government Plot Free of Charge.

Washington, Nov. 18.—A naval armor plant free of cost to the government is offered formally by Pottsville, Pa., through Congressman Robert E. Lee, of that town.

The site offered by Mr. Lee is located on the main lines of the Philadelphia & Reading and the Pennsylvania railroads, in the heart of the anthracite coal region.

There will be no charge to the navy department if it decided to take the ground offered by the Pottsville congressman.

Mr. Lee made his offer through this letter to Secretary Daniels:

"In view of the fact that the government is considering the erection of its own armor plant, I am authorized by the citizens of Schuylkill county, Pennsylvania, the district that I have the honor to represent, to tender to the government, free of charge, a suitable plot of ground for the erection of said plant. The ground is located on the main lines of the Philadelphia & Reading and the Pennsylvania railroads, in the heart of the anthracite coal region.

MAY ISOLATE MEXICO CITY

Huerta Said to Have Threatened Demolition of Railroad and Telegraph.

Washington, Nov. 18.—More than 1500 Americans in Mexico City are declared to be in danger of having their means of escape cut off.

Charge d'affaires O'Shaughnessy is reported to have informed Secretary of State Bryan that Provisional President Huerta has threatened to destroy railroad communication between Mexico City and Vera Cruz.

The report adds that O'Shaughnessy was instructed to do what he could to preserve the railroad intact for the use of such foreigners as may wish to leave.

Huerta's alleged threat also included the demolition of the telegraph lines leading out of Mexico City.

$100,000 IN BRIDAL GIFTS

Secret Service Men Watch Over Miss Wilson's Presents.

ONE DOG AMONG THEM

The Arrangements For White House Wedding Next Week Are Rapidly Nearing Completion.

Washington, Nov. 18.—A guard of secret service men has been installed at the White House to keep watch over valuable wedding presents for Miss Jessie Wilson, who is to be married to F. B. Sayre on Nov. 25.

The jewelry and four solid silver dinner sets, together with a hundred odd pieces of silver and gold, valued at more than $100,000, are locked up in a closet under guard day and night. Many of the presents are bulky.

One of the members of the "Southern Cousins Club" sent a massive set of antique mahogany furniture, and there are a number of other pieces of furniture, to say nothing of Oriental rugs and lamps. Two of the new "spare rooms," which were built in the top story last summer, are being used for the storage of these cumbersome gifts.

Packages are arriving every hour. The gifts are sent up to the family sitting room on the second floor, and the family goes into "executive session" to take a "peek." Even the president, when he goes across from the offices to the White House proper for luncheon, is dragged up to have a look at the presents which arrived during the morning. Almost all of the "official presents" have been received, but there are still many friends of the family who have not been heard from.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond are said to have in contemplation the gift of a large and perfect single diamond, which may be worn as a pendant or affixed to a hair ornament.

Miss Wilson will have only one dog for a wedding present. She has been offered a great many pets of all kinds, but the only "live gift" will be Ping Pong, a Pekinese, sent to her from the American embassy in London, as the result of a long cherished wish.

Arrangements for the wedding are rapidly nearing completion. The east room will be roped off with white satin ropes from the entrance of the main corridor to the opposite window, enclosing the doors of the blue room and the dais on which the bridal party will stand.

An aisle will be marked in this inclosure, down which the wedding party will proceed. The president's family and relatives and the bridegroom's family will be grouped about the base of the dais.

Directly back of them the cabinet members and their wives will stand, with Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and Mrs. White and the associate justices and their wives. Vice President and Mrs. Marshall, Speaker and Mrs. Clark, Miss Genevieve Clark, the dean of the diplomatic corps and Mme. Jusserand, and the ambassadors and ministers of the corps and their families.

HAND SHOT OFF

Gun Being Cleaned by Hunter Accidentally Discharged.

Guy Warner, of Seven Valleys, aged about twenty-five years, had his right hand blown off by the accidental discharge of a gun, which he was preparing to take hunting. The gun was an old one that had not been used for years, and the young man's father had warned him against using it. Warner sat down on the porch of his home to get the gun in condition for hunting. He tried to break the gun in order to withdraw the shells. This he failed to accomplish. He set the gun down, leaning it against the wall. As he did so it was discharged and his hand, which was over the mouth of the gun, was blown off.

Dr. G. M. Fickes was summoned and after dressing his wounds ordered Warner taken to the York hospital. At that institution the mangled portion of the hand was amputated by the staff surgeons.

TEACHERS' LOT

Town Boys Won Basket Ball Game from School Teachers.

The Gettysburg High School basketball team on Monday afternoon defeated a team of Adams County teachers at the Garden Auditorium 12 to 4. The High School team was composed of Blair, Reynolds, Spangler, Troxel and Stahl with Sachs, Timmins and Armour as substitutes. The following teachers played, Messrs. Trostle, Palmers, Lischy, Mummert and Starry. For Gettysburg Blair caged one goal, Troxel two and Reynolds two, while Reynolds scored two from fouls. On November 22 the Hassett Club of Harrisburg will play the Gettysburg High School here.

FOLLOW THE STRING.

Much sport may be had by the distribution of comical gifts in the following fashion:

From a given center cords of all colors and conditions, no two alike, extend in every direction—upstairs, downstairs and almost into mllady's chamber, across each other, here and there, often being knotted together at these points of intersection. Each searcher winds up his cord as he proceeds, and many difficulties in the way of knots to be untied and round and round windings to be unwound he encounters. When he finally reaches his future it usually proves to be a coin, a toy, a book of nursery tales or some article of absolute absurdity.

Courtship in Oshima.

On the Japanese island of Oshima in the Sea of Japan the young people enjoy more freedom in the matter of courting than in Central Japan. They are left to themselves to select their own mates, much after the fashion of the west. When a young suitor proposes to the girl of his choice, the girl declines two or three times as a matter of form, and in order that she may enjoy the period of courtship.

CHRISTMAS ICES.

Delicious Desserts With Which to Round Out the Feast.

Iced desserts make delicious features of the Christmas dinner. They may be in the form of plain ice cream or one of the elaborate ices which are served under fancy names.

The dessert should come to the table in an attractive form. It may be frozen in a fancy mold and decorated with candied or glace cherries, with nut meats or sprigs of holly.

The following delicious ices were suggested by that authority in culinary art, the Boston Cooking School Magazine, and are illustrated here:

Chestnut Bavarian Cream.—Home-made chestnut preserve, either whole or broken nuts, is the best form in which to use chestnuts for this dish. Decorate the bottom of the mold with slices of candied or maraschino cherries and chestnuts. Cook one-third cupful of raisins in boiling water to cover until the raisins are tender and the water is nearly evaporated. Cut a dozen cherries in pieces, add the pieces left from decorating the mold and the raisins. Add one-fourth cupful of chestnuts in small pieces and one-fourth cupful of the chestnuts pressed through a sieve and enough of the chestnut sirup to make in all a generous cup of material. Let heat and in it dissolve one tablespoonful of granulated gelatin, one-fourth package, softened in one-fourth cupful of cold water. Set the dish into ice and water and stir till it begins to thicken, then fold in one cupful of cream beaten very light. When the mixture will "hold its shape" put it into the mold by spoonfuls. When unmolded surround with pieces of preserved chestnut in sirup. If the preserve has not been favored add a teaspoonful of vanilla before folding in the cream.

Ice Cream With Raspberry Sherbet.—Pack vanilla ice cream into a ring mold, cover securely and pack in four measures of crushed ice to one of salt. When unmolded fill the center with canned or preserved peaches. Pour half frozen raspberry sherbet over it.

THE CHRISTMAS BREAKFAST.

It Should Be Merely a Preparation For Dinner.

The Christmas breakfast as well as the Christmas lunch or supper should be light, but none the less attractive. In some families it is the custom to distribute Christmas gifts at the breakfast table, placing them at the plates of those for whom they are intended before they enter the room.

A nice gift for the housewife is something ornamental or useful for the table.

If an egg dish like the one illustrated here is chosen it may be brought on as a surprise containing the Christmas breakfast eggs.

Some persons like to eat a boiled egg from its shell instead of having it turned

BREAKFAST DISHES.

ed out into a cup. For these there come egg scissors that cut evenly around the top of the egg, leaving the office large enough to insert a spoon.

These scissors are miniature chickens with eyes of ruby and the steel handles gilded. The finger loops are left natural color for the sake of the contrast, and the whole affair is not more than five inches long.

A handsome platter for the accommodation of eggs served on toast may be presented.

A nice way of serving the Christmas breakfast eggs is to set two small slices of toasted bread, well buttered, on a dish; above arrange about eighteen hot, cooked asparagus tips; above the tips set two poached eggs. Pour over the whole a scant cupful of Madeira sauce, in which six or eight peeled mushroom caps (sliced or not) have been simmered about ten minutes.

RALPH PARLETTE TO LECTURE HERE

Humorist-Lecturer Will Give His Idea on Lecturing.

Ralph Parlette, editor of the Lyceum Magazine, humorist and widely known lecturer, has been engaged to lecture here this season. He is a genius—only a genius could write and talk as he does. He was asked his idea of lecturing and we give below what he wrote us.

Parlette's Idea of Lecturing.

I used to think a lecture was a lot of words. I used to think if I could only get the words put together right, get the right position on the stage, get control of my diaphragm and let the fingers follow the wrist, that would be a lecture. And I hunted for words and tried to build fine sentences. I studied the books and learned voice culture and gesturing. I learned how to make a climax, wet or dry. I learned how to use the tremolo stop and how to split the window panes. And I made a monkey of myself.

It has taken fifteen years to begin to learn that a lecture is the overflow of a life. It is the man inside the clothes and the gestures. We need the gestures and the training, but they are the necktie. And I had a necktie and no man to hang it on!

Now I am trying to make my life luminous and big and warm and right, and something is happening. The world used to run away from me, but now it comes to see me. The world is hungry, and when my audience asked me for bread I gave it a gesture. And the audience went to sleep. Now I am trying to give my audience food, no matter if the wrapper isn't very artistic, and they come back and ask for more.

And it is a daily job to lecture. I work all the day on the typewriter, and run for trains, and grab for my change-made pie off the lunch counters make long drives and stay out of bed all night, and when I get to my town in the evening it is heavenly rest just to get on the platform and spill out the gold I am digging out each day over the audience that some hard-working committee has been struggling for weeks to get out.

I love every audience. I go to it like it was my long-lost brother. I used to hate audiences—and they hated me. The audience is just my own mirror. I smile at the audience, and it always smiles back. There's that front row of wriggling kids down there. I love them, and pretty soon they quit wriggling and listen to me. And there's the baby that breaks its heart and fusses up its mother as I commence to lecture. I love that baby, and somehow the wireless begins to work and pretty soon the baby is sticky-eyed and mother has forgotten it all.

Then I talk a few moments and rest myself from the long day's work and travel, and, bless me! just about the time I get started on my lecture, I look at my watch and I have talked too long already. So I don't give my lecture at all. I haven't given a lecture for a year. I just started to give one and the time was up; just like I used to sleep when a boy—went to bed and somebody stole the night, for the next minute it was morning and father was coming upstairs with a pitcher of water to make his last call.

But I go away from the hall all rested. I filed pretty near 300 dates last year. Folks warned me I was killing myself. I want to go on killing myself that way, for I got fatter and happier each month, resting nearly 300 times. It is great to rest in public and be paid money for it. I feel guilty every time I take money from a committee. I feel as though I ought to pay the committee for the privilege of resting before their audience.

I know my lecture stuff is good for the audience, because it is good for me. I first try it on myself. And the big thing I have learned in these years of trying to lecture is: Keep in touch with the Power-House! There is only one subject in this world—God and Man. There is a difference between a sermon and a lecture. The Lyceum platform is my pulpit. Roll it all down into Race Improvement.

I haven't done anything yet, but I see the way. Somebody slaps me on the back and says: "I heard you at ——" "Stop!" I beg. "Don't throw it up to me! I am trying to forget it." For I am not pleased with one lecture yet, but the big Lecture I want to give is ahead. I'll give it when my life gets big.

A Discovery

By MARY L. BLACKISTON

One day a man stood in London beside one of those holes left for the use of persons who descend to the sewers.

The place was in an unfrequented portion of the city, and there was no one near him. He looked about him and listened for a footfall, then, producing a crowbar, inserted one end under the round metal cover of the hole and, lifting it, descended, permitting the cover to fall back into its place. Once in the sewer he drew from under his ragged coat a lantern.

John Murphy made his living by picking up articles that, having got into the sewer, were lost to their owners. Soon he found an umbrella. It was covered with sewer mud, but was of silk with an elaborately carved handle. John knew that when new it was worth a couple of sovereigns; that cleaned he might get half of that for it. This was unusual luck. He went on looking about him for other articles, but after an hour's walk had found nothing. He was about to leave the sewer when he stumbled on the biggest find in his life—no, the biggest find in the world.

He came to a place where a small piece of the masonry had fallen in. Pointing the bullseye of his lantern upward, he threw the light into the aperture left vacant and disclosed a broken floor composed of marble squares. Piling the fallen debris so as to enable him to get his hands on what was above him, he drew himself up and found himself in a room. Throwing his light about him, he saw a number of boxes, some of which were loosely covered. Examining the contents of one of them, he threw his light on gold coins. Other boxes contained like contents. In the room was a treasure of inestimable value.

It was now night. Murphy wished to emerge by a manhole near the break and took the risk of doing so. Several persons saw him, but thought nothing of the matter. As soon as he got up on the street he saw straight before him the Bank of England. Then he knew that he had been in the strong room of the largest banking institution in the world.

One morning the governor of the bank received a note addressed to him, ungrammatical, misspelled, bearing every evidence of having been written by an illiterate person. The writer said that the bank was in danger of losing a great deal of money. A letter addressed to John Murphy at a certain postoffice substation, inviting the said Murphy to state his case to the governor, would receive attention. Many old letters reach the Bank of England, and Murphy's letter was weeded out of the governor's mail before reaching him.

A few days later the bank received by express ten sovereigns wrapped in a piece of paper, on which was written in pencil the number of the box in the strong room from which they had been taken. The money in the box was counted and found to be short by ten sovereigns.

The incident excited a commotion among the officials of the bank. A meeting in the governor's private room was called to consider the loss and how it could have occurred. No one dreamed that there was a hole in the floor of the strong room, and no one could suggest a probable way by which the coins sent to the bank had been removed. While the officials were considering, John Murphy appeared before an official at a desk and said that he wished to see the governor. Having been questioned by the startled official, he said that he was the man who had sent the ten sovereigns to the bank and was there to tell how he got them.

The official had not heard of the sending of the coins, for that had been kept a profound secret. He told John Murphy to move on, and John did so but to another part of the building where he told his story again and again. He was just about to be taken into custody by a bank policeman when a prominent official of the bank who knew the secret of the returned sovereigns happened to inquire his offense. Within five minutes the ragged sewer searcher was standing in the governor's room confronting a number of sleek looking directors. He was permitted to speak and told the assembly how he had got into the strong room from the sewer and how he or any one else who knew the secret might go and come at will.

If the receipt of the sovereigns had caused a commotion this information raised a whirlwind of excitement. A committee was sent to examine the strong room and returned confirming Murphy's information. John was held for two reasons—the money must be counted to make sure that he had not appropriated any of it, and if he should tell the secret the matter would make a much greater sensation among the public than even it did among the officials of the bank.

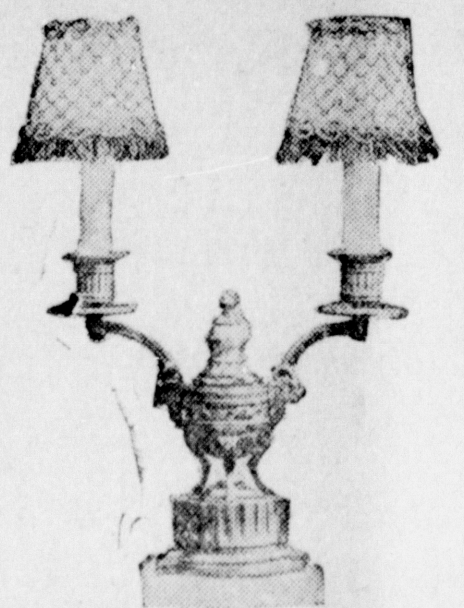

The count required a long while, and during the time it was in progress the sewer was repaired and the room made strong. When it was all over the discoverer of the break was summoned to the governor's room.

"How many persons have you told of this matter?" asked the latter. "No one except you in the bank." "On that table are a thousand sovereigns. Take them and make your own comfortable. You are also appointed one of the strong room watchers with a salary of £500 a year."

thing for the living or dining room. The base, as you see, is an urn shaped affair, and the branches curve out gracefully from the main stem. The coloring of the shades will naturally be selected to harmonize with the fittings of the room in which they are to be placed.

A Novel Receptacle.

Much neater looking than the waste paper basket is the new substitute for it—the scrap box with its big bow decorated lid swinging on ribbon hinges. The scrap box is made by covering with fancy paper, cretonne or tapestry the medium sized pasteboard receptacle in which your medium sized autumn hat was sent home and lining it with asbestos sheeting. This lining is necessary because a match thrown by a careless person into a wastebasket is likely to prove dangerous. These waste paper boxes make very individual presents if the recipient's preference in colors is remembered.

While vivid colors are very modish, a touch is quite sufficient to brighten and trim the street dress or suit. For evening wear, of course, these bright dyes may be indulged in to the heart's content. The blond or she of the "in between" complexion may select Turkish green or one of the brilliant blues for the touch of sharp contrast required on the new suit or frock.

A plain blouse and a plaid skirt are used in 7713-7861. The design shows a novel two-piece skirt. The arrangement of the tucks on the front gives the effect of a tunic in front and a slightly draped appearance in back. The blouse shows a good looking raglan sleeve in a drop-shoulder.

THE LIGHT BRAHMA.

The Light Brahma is in particular the professional man's pet and pride. This big beauty is seldom seen on large business plants except where capons are a specialty.

Its immense size makes it too large for ordinary market demand. It requires too much time to fill out and mature, and it is not a race horse layer like the Leghorn.

It's really a back yard fancier's bird. A giant, gentle fowl for confined runs, a source of recreation for the doctor, of pleasure for the lawyer, of delight to the showman and of inspiration in more ways than one to the preacher.

There has been much dispute as to the origin of the Brahma. John Bull trying to make us believe it had the same source as the English Brahma.

Now, if this Brahma rooster scrip was submitted to The Hague we be lieve the decision rendered would be as follows:

The English Brahma came from the Gray Shanghaes. These Gray Shanghaes were first bred by George P. Barnham of Boston, in 1850, by crossing Chitt tagons with a large gray variety, probably Brahma Postras, brought from a ship with fowls from China. In 1852 Mr. Barnham shipped eight of these fowls to Queen Victoria, and from them the English Brahma was bred, but the American Light Brahma was bred from a later consignment of fowls from Asia by Messrs. Chamberlain and Cornish, who did not tell the breeders entering into their strain.

The Shanghaes (English Brahma) little resembled the American Brahma, having single comb and narrow skull the American having the pen comb and broad, overhanging skull, distinctive characteristics of the American ideal, which, with the feathering of outer shanks and outer and middle toes, rather put it in a class by itself.

What a princely, beautiful bird in its kingly dignity, graceful curves, massive strength, snow white body, striped hackle, black tail and greenish black sickles.

Brahma breeders should avoid vul ture hocks, solid black feathering and spots on back, white, red and dark shanks.

DRESSING SACKS AND OTHER DAINTY GIFTS

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

What could please a dainty woman more than the little dressing sacks made of mull or silk or any of the thin filmy fabrics of which there are so many? These fabrics are gay with printed flowers or covered with dots and embroidered figures. When a plain mull or batiste is used it is embellished with tucks, embroidery and lace. Ribbon roses and bows are used on all of these pretty mornings

Jackets and lace makes a dependable and harmonious finish for them.

A dressing sack of India lawn is shown here, cut from a piece covered with half-inch tucks. It has the popular kimono sleeve with plain beading set in, through which an inch-wide ribbon is run. The body is set in to a belt of embroidery. The little basque, set on the belt, is plain and finished with a narrow hand-sewed hem. An edging of Val lace is whipped to the hem and finishes the neck and sleeves. Bows of narrow ribbon decorate the sleeves and are placed over the button fastening at the neck and waist.

The material for such a sack will cost anywhere from one to two dollars in good qualities.

A short kimono jacket of silk or printed cottons costs next to nothing in the matter of material. Two yards of yard-wide goods is an ample allowance for it.

The woman who can sew neatly finds it possible to take the simplest materials—short lengths and remnants of goods that cost next to nothing—and convert them into just such pretty kimonos and dressing sacks as are shown here. It requires very little expenditure of money, but some time and ability to make them up—but they are worth it.

Something pretty and useful as well makes the best of all Christmas gifts to women friends. Here is a group of dainty feminine belongings all easy to make and costing anywhere from 50 cents to $2 or $3, depending upon the sort of lace used in them.

The bonnet-shaped cap is made of a half-yard of all-over lace and three-quarters of a yard of lace plaiting which is bought ready made. A circle having a diameter of 18 inches makes the crown. This is gathered into the bound edge of the ready-made plaiting. Two yards of ribbon an inch and a half wide forms a band about the face and neck finished with a little bow at each side. The plaiting is turned back about the face and tacked to place.

The crown of the other cap is made of two strips of ribbon and three of lace, each six inches wide. They are stitched together. A yard of plaited net makes the ruffle. The crown is sewed to the plaiting and an elastic 27 inches long is sewed at the joining. Satin ribbon one inch wide is gathered to form little flowers of four petals each. Four of these are set across the front of the cap with a hanging loop and end making a finish at each side.

The corset cover made of strips of point d'esprit takes some time to make, but very little expense to buy the materials. The point d'esprit strips (or narrow edging of this pattern) are joined by an inexpensive clumsy pattern of insertion. A beading of Swiss embroidery about the top and the waist carries a satin ribbon less than an inch wide. A very narrow Val edge finishes the top and the shoulder straps are made of these narrow insertions stitched together.

These airy bits of finery are meant to wear under thin dresses, for special occasions. They are so pretty the recipient is sure to treasure them and enjoy the luxury of wearing them.

What Bothered Him.

"Did your father ever raise his hand to you, Billy?" asked Tommy. "Hundreds of times," said Billy. "But it wasn't that that bothered me. Where I got stung was when he brought it down."

THE HERO IN BLUE.

Being not of the soldier
Who saved this land for you,
But of the hero who all week
Wears the overalls of blue.

He hears no sounding bugle,
But at the whistle's blast he's there
To fight the daily battle
And to do his noble share.

He faces no loud cannon,
But before the furnace flame,
At the throttle or in dark, deep mine
This hero oft dies game.

He hears no whistling bullet,
Beneath a flag unfurled,
But he's the hero makes our land
The workshop of the world.

He may not push a bayonet home
Nor on a rampart die,
But his hard hand has placed our land
On a pinnacle so high.

That the nations stand in wonder
And the people praise the Lord
That the victories of labor
Are greater than the sword.

STOCK OR EGGS, WHICH?

Here is a question from a beginner that may interest others. "How should I start—with stock or eggs?" At once there comes to memory a sad event in our early experience when we paid $20 for eggs and but 10 per cent were fertile, and this remembrance and other considerations prompt us to say, Start with stock or chicks.

Not that all poultrymen are sharks, though. The profession has its swindlers, like the others. But one is more apt to be deceived on eggs. Then the baggage snatcher is on the job. And no one knows the pedigree of the eggs unless he knows the breeders, and eggs also have their vicissitudes in the incubator.

We prefer adult stock to chicks. Chicks may come true to name and be all that is desired; then they may be otherwise, and their development and future only can prove whether they come from inbred, immature stock or not.

We prefer stock because you know what you've got. You are apt occasionally to be deceived in buying stock, but not so frequently as with the others, and then there's no waiting for it to hatch nor develop, and there's no time wasted, as when hatching and development are a failure. The stock is in sight, in your hands.

You know what you are breeding from. You are sure of good eggs if you manage right. You know the pedigree of your chicks. Your parent stock is an asset for the next season, and if fine breeding is the object you may mate progeny back to parents.

Foundation stock is all important, and buyers should not haggle over a good price for good birds.

Buying by mail is cash, and birds are not sold on credit simply because the seller does not know any more about the buyer than the buyer knows about him, but the privilege to return purchases if express is prepaid and your money back is the rule. It pays to spend a few dollars looking around before buying. This gives one the chance to see other plants and to personally pick the stock, and that isn't so much like buying a pig in a poke.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

Rhodesia, South Africa, has regular poultry inspectors, who meet all trains coming into that territory and reject any poultry unfit for food. Think of the "Dark Continent" being ahead of Uncle Sam in poultry inspection! Whew!

Many beginners select a line in poultry where is hottest competition both for market and show, and the fellow of wider experience has the advantage of them. Take capons. They are made of roosters, easy to raise, sell the highest, and yet so many pass this by when the demand for capons is unlimited.

The hen is not a magician, as some would have us believe. She cannot make many eggs and sustain bodily vigor on mere bran. Neither is she a natural garbage disposal plant. She cannot change obnoxious offal into sweet pure flesh and delightful sweet sanitary eggs, and no bughouse argument can make us believe such rot.

Keep the water vessels full of clean, fresh water the year round. It is not only necessary to the health and comfort of the fowl, but remember that over 65 per cent of the edible part of an egg is water. A hen gets some water from green food, but not sufficient for her eggs and bodily needs.

To save fish spawn that might be lost the Chinese are said to open hens' eggs, empty them, place the spawn therein, close the aperture, set them under hens, and then when about to hatch they break the eggs and place the spawn in warm water, where the little fish come out and are later placed in large ponds.

A citizen of White Salmon, Wash., angry on account of the depredations of neighbors' hens, sent the following letter to the judges of the United States supreme court: "Honored Sirs—Will you please send me a copy of the decision that poultry is considered a wild bird when in your neighbor's yard and can be taken up as such?" As no such decision has been handed down our friend will now probably make his tory by wielding the ax and pleading the unwritten law.

Here's one from the London Opinion for those who desire a sure way to tell the age of poultry:

"Casey," said Pat, "how do yez tell th' age of a tu-u-ree?"

"O! can always tell by the teeth," said Casey.

"By the teeth?" exclaimed Pat. "But a tu-u-ree has no teeth."

"No," admitted Casey, "but O! have."

Medical advertising TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed with Sulphur It
Darkens so Naturally
Nobody can Tell

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grand-mother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides, prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.

Use a Sponge. For sponges that have become dingy, it is found by treating them in the following manner makes them good as new: Get a basin, fill it with boiling water and a little washing soda, then put the sponge into this and leave it for several hours. When this is finished, rinse in plain hot water, afterwards rinsing in cold. Leave the sponge in the cold water until you are ready to use it again.

Has the Advantage. A man is mightier than the word, said the ready-made philosopher. "I don't quite see how the adage applies to current conditions," commented the man with a practical mind. "Probably refers to the fact that a word as now worn is entirely useless, while a fountain pen can express in a way that will run a $45 suit in five seconds."—Washington Star.

KING FERDINAND TO QUIT

Will Abdicate Bulgarian Throne in Favor of Crown Prince.

Berlin, Nov. 18.—King Ferdinand of Bulgaria, who arrived in Coburg, is passing through such a crisis, according to well informed circles in Coburg and Berlin that his abdication of the throne in favor of his son is possible and even probable. The king is residing incognito at the palace in Coburg.

Austrian statesmen are doing their utmost to discourage his proposed surrender of the throne, because they consider that the young Crown Prince Boris is likely to be influenced by the element friendly to Russia.

King Ferdinand at the same time is receiving little encouragement in Germany. Emperor William and the German government have expressed themselves openly as friendly to Greece. It is understood that when King Ferdinand expressed a desire to come to Berlin he was given an intimation that such a visit would be useless.

Ferdinand is the youngest son of the late Prince Augustus of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, and was elected prince of Bulgaria on July 7, 1887. He declared himself king in 1908 and was recognized by the powers.

MISSING GIRL OF 7 FOUND WITH YOUTH

Were Discovered in Philadelphia Lodging House.

Philadelphia, Nov. 18.—Found in a room in a lodging house at 337 North Twelfth street Louis Thomas Emmons, known also as Louis Donville, nineteen years old, of Toronto, Can., but recently of Washington, and Harriet Grant, seven years old, of Washington, were taken in charge by Barry and Clarke, special policemen.

The little girl is the daughter of Frank E. Grant, of 46 C street, Northwest, Washington, who befriended Emmons when he was without food or sufficient clothing. Emmons entered the Grant home on July 17. At that time he told Mrs. Grant, who also is a Canadian, a tale about his mother, father, sister and brothers dying and leaving him alone in the world without any means of a livelihood. Since that time he has been clothed and fed by Mr. Grant and has not done any work.

The charge against Emmons was being a fugitive from the District of Columbia. The charges at Washington are abduction, larceny and a statutory offense.

The prisoner was arraigned before Magistrate Eisenbrow and turned over to the Washington authorities. Later he was manacled to Sergeant G. E. Burlingame, a Washington detective, and taken before United States Commissioner Edmunds in the federal building. He was then held under $2000 bail to await the preparation of removal papers.

During the hearing Emmons appeared uneasy. The little girl watched the proceedings as she would a parade and the excitement seemed to please her. She said she was glad she was going to have another train ride. Little Harriet was taken back to her home in Washington by Sergeant Burlingame. Her mother, Mrs. Grant, is in a serious condition as the result of the abduction and the girl had been missing since Friday, and the police of every eastern city had been on the lookout for them.

HUNTS BODY OF SON STOLEN BY GHOULS

Thinks Medical School Has Corpse of Serpent's Victim.

Altoona, Pa., Nov. 18.—Alleging that ghouls robbed the grave of his son and sent the body to a medical school at Baltimore, August Kuhlman, of Pavia, Bedford county, left Altoona for Baltimore to try to recover the corpse.

The son, eighteen years old, was bitten by a serpent last summer. His mind was blank for a time and then his head grew to twice its normal size. Finally he lost his reason, and two weeks ago he died. Doctors wanted to examine the brain, but Kuhlman refused to permit it.

When he went to place flowers on the grave he found the body had been stolen, and the shipment of a big box to Baltimore gave him a clue.

TO CONTEST ELECTION

Defeated candidate seeks to oust South Bethlehem's newly elected Mayor.

South Bethlehem, Pa., Nov. 18.—Steps are being taken to contest the election of Dr. Mitchell Walter, who was chosen mayor of the new city of South Bethlehem over H. A. R. Dietrich, by twenty-one votes on Nov. 4.

James T. Woodring, attorney for H. A. R. Dietrich, presented a petition to the court at Easton to contest the election. The petition bears the names of thirty local voters, who allege, among other things, that votes were counted for both men when they should not have been counted; that people voted who were not registered, and that others voted who failed to pay their taxes.

There also will be a contest to establish the legality of the election on Dec. 1, when the officers elected take their seats. The contest will be brought by councilmen whose terms of office have not expired.

FINISH CURRENCY DRAFTS THURSDAY

Both Wings of Senate Committee Agree to Report.

A HOLIDAY IS SUGGESTED

Adjournment of Congress Over Thanksgiving Is Talked of, But No Action Will Be Taken Without Consent of President.

Washington, Nov. 18.—A definite agreement by both the administration and the anti-administration wings of the senate banking and currency committee to complete their drafts of the currency bill, and submit them to the senate by Thursday, was followed by general talk at the capitol of an adjournment over Thanksgiving.

Informal discussion of the possibility of adjournment on both sides of the capitol, however, failed to take any definite shape. No adjournment will be taken without the consent of the president, and he has not made known his views. In the senate it was believed that the president might agree to a brief recess, although it has been known that he desired to have congress in session in the event of emergencies arising in the Mexican situation.

Saturday, Monday and Tuesday have been suggested as possible dates for adjournment in conferences of the house and senate leaders. Majority Leader Underwood, due to return from his senatorial campaign in Alabama on Thursday, is expected to take up this question with President Wilson.

Both wings of the senate committee continued work on their bills. The six administration Democrats reopened their deliberations to consider the advisability of altering the provision in the Glass-Owen bill for shifting the reserves of the country from the present depositories to the new regional reserve banks. It has been suggested that the provision might make too great a demand on the banking resources of the country, result in the calling of loans and consequent stringency. The Democrats reached no definite agreement, but Chairman Owen agreed to tabulate the figures available on the subject and present them to the committee.

Senator Hitchcock and the Republicans continued to write their draft of the bill. They increased the gold reserve to be held against the new currency to 45 per cent, and provided that when the reserve fell below that point it should be taxed on a graduated scale down to the minimum of 35 per cent.

The bond refunding section was entirely changed. As amended it would provide that each regional bank should each year invest 50 per cent of its available capital in the 2 per cent bonds at par, which are the basis of the present bank notes. The regional banks would then be allowed to exchange the 2 per cent bonds for 3 per cent one-year government notes, agreeing to renew the notes for twenty years. These notes would be available for use in foreign markets to obtain gold to maintain the reserve.

The Republicans also made numerous amendments correcting what they regarded as discrepancies in the bill, and making the later sections conform to amendments already adopted.

TYPHOID IN COATESVILLE

Has Sixteen Cases and Town Asks State Aid.

Coatesville, Pa., Nov. 18.—The prevalence of typhoid fever in this vicinity is becoming alarming. There are now sixteen cases in town and the disease is claiming new victims daily.

Eating raw mushrooms from a field near a place where sewage was deposited was the cause of the family of Frank V. Pratt, of Seiousca, becoming ill of typhoid fever, physicians declare. Mr. Pratt, his wife, child and an employee are now convalescing.

The state was asked to assist in the investigation and an officer from the state health department will arrive to work with the Coatesville board of health, which thinks that the cause of the continued outbreak is due to milk from dairies in a most unsanitary condition.

The board of health has advanced the theory that the deposits contaminated the water supply on farms. Samples of all milk sold in Coatesville will be tested at once.

Kaiser Forbids Tango.

Berlin, Nov. 18.—Emperor William has forbidden German army and navy officers while in uniform to dance the tango, one step and two-step, according to the Salon. ## Why This Pen Won't Leak

Look at the feed tube of your fountain pen. If it is curved like the Parker—the pen won't leak or sweat.

Ordinary fountain pens have straight feed tubes, in which ink stays even when pen is point up. Expanding air forces this ink out onto end of pen as soon as your body heats the pen.

The Parker Lucky Curve Feed Tube touches inside of barrel, causing Capillary Attraction. This draws all ink out of feed tube the instant you turn pen up-right, and before expanding air ascends.

That's why Parkers won't leak.
